

Dear Parents,

SPRING BREAK 2020!

Welcome back! We are excited to see the kids again tomorrow at 9am. The break was good for sleeping, eating and thinking about how good it is that our kids are still in school and engaged in their routines and learning. Teachers have mentioned how impressed they have been with the seriousness that our students are showing right now, and their will to be together, engaged and finding a way to make the best of this moment. Greatest props to the kids, as usual.

We have good and important weeks ahead for us, as the last weeks of school always are. We are excited to try our end-of-year assessments (grades 3-8) in a couple of weeks, with an understanding that we are testing students in a very strange and stressful time. We will share more about the ERBs on Thursday, April 23 at 7pm, at our next Parent Webinar.

Thank you for joining the webinar last week. We will answer any new questions, and encourage you to please ask yours' too. Send me an email and your question and I'll try to answer on Thursday. I'm also available for any phone calls or meetings you would like to arrange. I will send the invitation on Wednesday in an email to our parents.

We have received several inquiries from families interested in the school based on your recommendations. Thank you! Keeping our enrollment as strong as possible will be key to our own recovery from this incredible and devastating experience. The key our success has always been a reflection of the people who love and support the school - THANK YOU!
