MESSAGE FROM THE INTERIM PRESIDENT

Dear Students, Alumni, Parents, Faculty, and Staff,

As I reflect on my four years here at St. Patrick-St. Vincent Catholic High School, I could have never imagined all that I would learn on this journey alongside you.

This year, as Principal and my first as your Interim President, has also been a journey. I have worked diligently with the SPSV Board of Trustees to establish policies and guidelines consistent with the Diocese of Sacramento. While our board is still building around a new governing model, it is comprised of dedicated alumni, former staff, and business professionals who all share a spiritual connection to our school and have responded to the call to serve us and the mission of Catholic education. I've also been inspired by the work that is actively being done by students, alumni, parents, faculty and staff to prepare SPSV for its accreditation process through the Western Association of Schools and Colleges (WASC) and the Western Catholic Educational Association (WCEA) next year. My most rewarding moments are always those celebrated with so many students in their individual achievements, whether it's passing a difficult test or receiving that first college acceptance letter. In the faces of these students I'm reminded that whatever task I'm completing or role I'm filling during the day, it is the students that we are all called to serve.

During this season of Lent, we are called to reflect on the past, remain steadfast in the present and share hope for the future with others. On March 14th, during liturgy, SPSV remembered 50 years of the St. Patrick High School campus. As a Catholic school in the Diocese of Sacramento we acknowledge the darkness experienced in our world and yet we choose to be the light and share the hope of the Lord.

Just as Mary stood outside the tomb, weeping in sorrow and pain, we too can turn our grief into joy and bring about the good news that has been proclaimed throughout the ages, "I have seen the Lord." (John 20:18)

This year's journey has had its challenges, but many have also commented that there is a new spirit of hope that they are experiencing here on campus.

Are we standing in the garden? Is this the new beginning?

In the Peace of Christ,

Coleen Martin
Principal and Interim President

SPSV STUDENTS DIG THE OUTDOORS

Over the next two years, SPSV students will have the opportunity to continue site visits in Vacaville to collect plant samples and provide descriptions of species across Solano County.

By Nathan Olmes '19

This fall, I had the great opportunity to receive hands on experience in my Environmental Science class. Thanks to the SPOT program and working alongside UC Davis and the Solano County Flora Project, I have been able to gain, in the field, hands-on experience that will assist me as I prepare for college.

The SPOT program is a collaborative program with the UC Davis Department of Plant Sciences and the Solano County Flora Project to collect plant specimens in an educational research partnership. This experience has given me the chance to do real field work and collect specimens for a University which is especially valuable to me as I move on to a science-based degree in college next year. My interest in the SPOT program has given me a great head start on my future studies. Through these opportunities, I have learned to collect plant samples from the field and identify my collections down to their species. Knowing how to correctly collect samples for research and carefully preserve them as data and for display were skills I picked up along the course of this semester. The experience of being able to collect and log data of plant species in the area helped me imagine what it would be like to work on a professional research project. The SPOT program is helping me develop the skills that will help me succeed in college. Not only has the program been beneficial directly for my skills in environmental science, but also in all other classes and aspects of my life. It has shown me how I can truly manage my time and skills to accomplish whatever I want. It has shown me that I can work alongside top professionals and contribute as much as they do. I have always had a passion for science, but after this great experience I know that this is what I want to continue in my life and choose as a career.

SPSV is privileged to have Dr. Ragosta in her second year as faculty at St. Patrick-St. Vincent Catholic High School. Over the next two years, SPSV students will have the opportunity to continue site visits in Vacaville to collect plant samples and provide descriptions of species across Solano County. This partnership with UC Davis Department of Plant Sciences and the Solano County Flora Project is a three-year project.

A very special thanks to Dr. Heath Bartosh from the Jepson Herbarium at UC Berkeley, Dr. Daniel Potter from the UC Davis Department of Plant Sciences, Dr. Summer Ragosta from the UC Davis Herbarium, Solano County Flora Project, and the Toomey Foundation. Additional support came from other generous donations to SPSV to fund this special project. Thank you for your generosity.

SUSTAINING TOMORROW'S FUTURE

"THE GARDEN" SAID COLEEN MARTIN, "WILL BE A WONDERFUL SPACE FOR OUR SPSV COMMUNITY TO GATHER WHILE SURROUNDED BY THE BEAUTY OF GOD'S GIFTS."

Rick Rodgers '77, English teacher for 32 years, plants seeds. Whether in the classroom of learning or in the SPSV community garden, he is a Master Gardener in his craft. As moderator of the Urban Farmers Club, Rodgers has dreamed of how the outdoor garden could be utilized as a multi-functional outdoor space for the entire school.

Recently, the Superintendent of Catholic Schools, Lincoln Snyder, signed an agreement with Sustainable Solano, a local community partner based in Benicia to create a demonstration garden that will be used to educate SPSV students and the greater community in sustainable landscape designs, water use, installation, and maintenance practices.

This spring, Sustainable Solano will provide a local consultant and landscape designer to manage this project and guide SPSV. SPSV students, families, and faculty will install much of the sustainable design elements that are essential to the project to harvest the water coming off the roof of the science labs and to direct water along with the surface water run-off into a system of berms and swales throughout what will become a small amphitheater.

While Sustainable Solano will provide funding for the 2,000 square-foot seed plot, St. Patrick-St. Vincent Catholic High School is responsible for raising the remaining funds necessary to expand this project into a small amphitheater. The goal of the project is to create an intimate, outdoor amphitheater that can serve as a multi-functional space to be utilized by the SPSV community for academic and extracurricular activities.

The additional funds needed for the amphitheater are for materials and installation of the hardscape (stage, seating, stairs, railings, etc.) to make the space functional. This amphitheater will be multi-functional for campus ministry, musical and theatrical performances, and an outdoor classroom. In addition, the proposed food forest will incorporate the principles of permaculture across the school curriculum and deepen our understanding of sustainability in our SPSV community.

The initial phase of this project in partnership with Sustainable Solano is proposed to begin in May 2019 and be completed by September 2019. This timeline will allow for faculty and staff to have eight weeks to educate the faculty and introduce the project-based curriculum to students to research, followed by 12 weeks of design and planting of the food forest. While the initial phase will be completed by the end of the academic calendar, SPSV would like to begin simultaneously preparing for the installation of hardscape this summer.

Additional funding has been secured to install a cob bench from the Solano Community Foundation.

To learn more about this project, to tour the outdoor space or to make a donation, please contact the Office of Advancement at 707.644.4425 x441 or t.godinez@spsv.org.

MAKING SPACE

FOR THE FUTURE OF EDUCATION

"In a world facing so many challenges and opportunities, setting students up for future success means exposing them to various disciplines, which is essential to developing their critical thinking skills."

Jason McCabe
Director of Technology

The traditions and legacy of the Dominican Sisters of San Rafael serve as a strong foundation upon which St. Patrick-St. Vincent Catholic High School continues to fulfill the mission of providing Catholic education in Solano County. For nearly 150 years, the Dominican Sisters have remained devoted to supporting a Catholic vision that promotes prayer, community, study and service in Vallejo and Benicia. Today this still stands true.

St. Patrick-St. Vincent Catholic High School received funds for a multi-phase remodeling project to modify a portion of the Library and adapt it into a hands-on learning laboratory for STEAM education, a new approach to teaching Science, Technology, Engineering, Arts, and Math in context with real-world experience. The goal of this project is to better prepare and inspire SPSV students, especially girls, to pursue a college education in STEAM subjects.

SPSV had a large space in the Library that was woefully underutilized due to the changes in format of many reading materials. Director of Technology, Jason McCabe, oversaw the renovation of this underutilized space into a STEAM learning center, turning the reference room into a Makers' Space with windows, portable white board tables for collaborative work assignments, cabinets in the room for 3-D printers, drawers underneath the cabinets to hold supplies and projects, and a wall-mounted flat screen television wired for presentations.

This newly renovated space provides more opportunities for teachers to integrate technology and other disciplines into their specific subjects and think outside the box as to how to integrate these areas. In this space, students can work in groups and use technological tools to envision and realize cutting edge ideas. Remodeling the Library encourages group work, self-directed thought, and innovation in design.

In the next academic year, SPSV will introduce Technology Innovation and Design, a UC-approved, project-based course that challenges students to be ingenious in solving real-world problems using 21st century tools.

This project was funded through the generous gift from the Dominican Sisters of San Rafael, the SPSV Board of Regents' and donors who supported the Fund-A-Need at the Spring 2018 Dinner & Auction, and designated funds to the library from the Finley Fund.

For a tour of this renovated space, please contact Director of Development, Jaime Kim.

OF PARENTS OF K-12 STUDENTS BELIEVE STEM EDUCATION SHOULD BE A PRIORITY.

Makers' Space Dedicated During Mass

On November 14th, 2018, SPSV hosted a ribbon-cutting ceremony for donors and STEM guests from area Catholic schools to have a firsthand look at the redesigned Makers' Space. Environmental Science students, led by Summer Ragosta, worked with an arcGIS Interactive Watershed Map to recreate the major 3D features of a topographic watershed, beginning around Lake Tahoe and draining into the Sacramento Valley. This hands-on curriculum allowed students to study scale and become familiar with degraded areas of the watershed, general water-flow patterns from higher to lower elevations, and pollution.

That weekend, on November 17, SPSV invited the Dominican Sisters of San Rafael, the Board of Trustees, faculty and staff to attend Mass in the Library. In honor of their generous contributions to SPSV, Jason McCabe thanked the Sisters for their dedicated spirit that continues to guide our school today. Sr. Maureen McInerney '64 was moved to emotion when acknowledging the work that the Sisters continue to make in the lives of SPSV students. Following the dedication of the space, a small reception and dinner was held.

WOMEN'S GOLF CHAMPS!

Four straight TCAL championships for SPSV

5 years ago, when Chris Walker '06 became the head golf coach for the team, she single handedly began transforming the Women's Golf program at SPSV.

"My first year was interesting," said Walker with some hesitation in her voice, "we lost every match that year." Despite that challenging first season, Walker persevered. "In the game of golf, not everything will go your way and with each stroke, with each hole, with each game you will have to deal with adversity." Walker's consistency as a coach has led the Women's Golf team to winning four straight TCAL championships in a row. And this year Walker's own performance did not go unnoticed, when she was selected as Coach of the Year. When speaking to team captain, Louise Perriatt, she spoke about how Walker supported her growth as a student-athlete at SPSV. "[Walker] has helped me focus on setting positive goals on and off the golf course. She has helped me find balance in my own life that will continue on with me to college."

AN IMPORTANT PART OF SUPPORTING SPSV STUDENTS!

The IMPACT of a Parent Volunteer

Existing research shows that "When parents are involved in their children's education at home, they do better in school. And when parents are involved in school, children go farther in school and the schools they go to are better."*

A SIGNIFICANT Difference for a Student

One study found that students from families with above-average parent involvement were more successful in school than those with below-average involvement. Success was measured by GPA; test scores in math, science, reading, and social studies; promotion and retention rates; and teacher ratings.

CONNECTING Home and School

A three-year study of high school students concluded that, "When parents come to school regularly, it reinforces the view in the child's mind that school and home are connected and that school is an integral part of the whole family's life."

A huge thank you to Giovanni Galindo '08, owner of The SnapShop SF Photobooth, and DJ John Laxa '88, who gave back to this year's 40th Annual Crab Feed. These alumni are amazing examples of alumni that continue to remain engaged, contributing members of the SPSV community.

Why should parents, alumni and the greater community get involved?

Involvement can make a dramatic difference in the lives of our children and future generations! If you are interested in volunteering for future SPSV events or sharing ideas for future events you would like to support and participate in, please contact alumni@spsv.org.

SPSV is grateful to parents, alumni and the greater community that go above and beyond to remain involved as volunteers who serve our mission. #itsagreattimetobeabruin

GOING SOCIAL

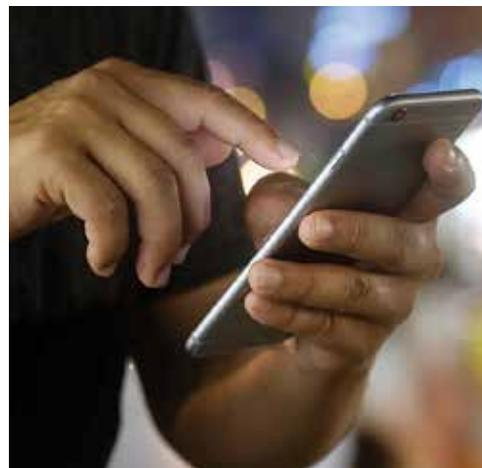

It's been thirty years since the young men of St. Patrick's and the young women of St. Vincent's were brought back together to form the first class of what is now St. Patrick-St. Vincent Catholic High School. Thirty years.

Thirty years ago, the first GPS satellite was sent into orbit, the first broadcast of high definition TV aired, and the World Wide Web was invented. Technology has prompted a younger generation of SPSV graduates to embrace a world that is adapting and evolving at a pace unlike previous generations had known before. While this younger generation of Generation X, Y and Millennials engage and participate in new ways, they are no less interested in maintaining a connection to the Spirit of SPSV. You may have noticed that some of our communication strategies have adapted to meet all of you where you are. Whether at home, at community events, or on social media, we want each engagement to continue to represent the Spirit of our school community and continue to build meaningful connections.

SPSV is now producing video and images that can be distributed and shared via social media at a frequency that formerly took months to prepare in printed communications. In the 21st century, SPSV is simply embracing social media to cover more stories about our amazing students, successful alumni, and innovative faculty and staff. We are celebrating your legacy, while sharing stories about the leaders of tomorrow.

By requesting support via Facebook, Instagram, and email and on our website we reached a new audience that had never made a gift to our school, and we received a new level of web and social media attention from a younger generation of alumni. These younger alumni are hungry for news at a frequency that helps to connect them to others throughout the year.

It remains our goal to continue to offer an exceptional college-preparatory experience and raise another generation of faith-filled leaders who strive to share their gifts with others. We cannot fulfill our mission without your help, so please like, share and post your comments on what you'd like to see next from SPSV.

Endowment & Scholarship Funds

Without the benefit of and access to a diverse student body, students won't be ready to navigate in our global world. Collaborating with peers from different socioeconomic and ethnic backgrounds enriches the school experience and also fosters individual awareness of other cultures, perspectives, and experiences.

We must ensure that St. Patrick-St. Vincent Catholic High School is a community where qualified and talented students from all backgrounds can learn with and from one another. Endowing a scholarship will provide much-needed ongoing support to our financial aid program and create a diverse learning environment that benefits every student.

Establish an Endowment

Establishing a named endowed scholarship is a wonderful way to honor family members, friends or mentors. Endowed scholarships can be made through a variety of giving options, either during your lifetime or at the time of your passing. During your lifetime, you can fund an endowment with cash, securities, real estate, or a life-time gift. You can also create an endowment through a will/living trust or retirement plan/insurance policy beneficiary designation.

For more information on starting an endowed scholarship fund, please contact Jaime Kim, Director of Development, at j.kim@spsv.org or 707.644.4425 x452.
